The Company's key distributors have agreed to distribute this product at existing retail locations of the Hemplify drinks and expect to place the product in coffee shops and cafes to be sold as an add-in to coffee and smoothies.

Overall Performance

For the six months ended June 30, 2017, sales were $50,280 (June 30, 2016 - $Nil). The cost of sales was $38,718 (June 31, 2016 - $Nil), resulting in a gross profit of $11,562 (June 30, 2016 - $Nil). Compared to the six months ended December 31, 2016, when the Company sold drink product for a total of $12,573, the current period result represents about a four-fold increase in sales.

The introduction of hemp extract "squeeze" (HES) product, which commands a higher price per bottle, and the shift to wholesale distributors results in significantly higher sales and lower delivery costs, relative to direct consumer sales, which is offset by a lower selling price of the hemp infused beverage to appeal to a broader market base. The revenue recognized in the quarter represents a portion of the HES product that was produced during this period.

Cost of sales includes writing off raw material that was damaged during production process. As with many beverage startups, the Company expects to expand margins as cost efficiencies are realized from increased production volumes.

5. Financial Instruments and financial risk factors

Refer to Note 3 to the audited annual consolidated financial statements for year ended December 31, 2016 and Note 11 of the unaudited interim condensed consolidated financial statements for six months ended June 30, 2017 and 2016 for a detailed description of our financial instruments and other instruments and related risk.

Risk Factors

There are numerous and varied risks, known and unknown, that may prevent the Company from achieving its goals. If any of these risks occur, the Company's business, financial condition or results of operation may be materially adversely affected. In such case, the trading price of the Company Shares could decline and investors could lose all or part of their investment. The following is a summary of certain risks that could be applicable to the business of the Company:

Limited operating history in its new area of business.

The Company has a limited operating history in its new area of business, is in the early-stage development and must be considered a start-up. As such, the Company is subject to many risks common to such enterprises, including under-capitalization, cash shortages, limitations with respect to personnel, financial and other resources and lack of revenue. There is no assurance that the Company will be successful in achieving a return on shareholders' investment and the likelihood of success must be considered in light of its early stage of operations. The Company also has no history of earnings.

THE TINLEY BEVERAGE COMPANY INC.
Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operation
For the six months ended June 30, 2017

Because the Company has a limited operating history in emerging area of business, you should consider and evaluate its operating prospects in light of the risks and uncertainties frequently encountered by early-stage companies in rapidly evolving markets. These risks may include:

- risks that it may not have sufficient capital to achieve its growth strategy;
- risks that it may not develop its product and service offerings in a manner that enables it to be profitable and meet its customers' requirements;
- risks that its growth strategy may not be successful;
- risks that fluctuations in its operating results will be significant relative to its revenues; and
- risks relating to an evolving regulatory regime.

The Company's future growth will depend substantially on its ability to address these and the other risks described in this section. If it does not successfully address these risks, its business may be significantly harmed.

Additional financing

The Company believes that its raised capital is sufficient to meet its presently anticipated working capital and capital expenditure requirements for the near future. This belief is based on its operating plan which, in turn, is based on assumptions, which may prove to be incorrect. In addition, the Company may need to raise significant additional funds sooner to support its growth, develop new or enhanced services and products, respond to competitive pressures, acquire or invest in complementary or competitive businesses or technologies, or take advantage of unanticipated opportunities. If its financial resources are insufficient, it will require additional financing to meet its plans for expansion. The Company cannot be sure that this additional financing, if needed, will be available on acceptable terms or at all. Furthermore, any debt financing, if available, may involve restrictive covenants, which may limit its operating flexibility with respect to business matters. If additional funds are raised through the issuance of equity securities, the percentage ownership of existing shareholders will be reduced, such shareholders may experience additional dilution in net book value, and such equity securities may have rights, preferences or privileges senior to those of its existing shareholders. If adequate funds are not available on acceptable terms or at all, the Company may be unable to develop or enhance its services and products, take advantage of future opportunities, repay debt obligations as they become due, or respond to competitive pressures, any of which could have a material adverse effect on its business, prospects, financial condition, and results of operations.

Volatile global financial and economic conditions

Current global financial and economic conditions remain extremely volatile. Access to public and private capital and financing continues to be negatively impacted by many factors as a result of the global financial crisis and global recession. Such factors may impact the Company's ability to obtain financing in the future on favorable terms or obtain any financing at all. Additionally, global economic conditions may cause a long-term decrease in asset values. If such global volatility, market turmoil and the global recession continue, the Company's operations and financial condition could be adversely impacted.

Competition

The beverage industry is highly competitive. The Company will compete with numerous other businesses in the beverage industry, many of which possess greater financial and marketing resources and other resources than the Company. The beverage business is often affected by changes in consumer tastes and discretionary spending patterns, national and regional economic conditions, demographic trends, consumer confidence in the economy, traffic patterns, local competitive factors, cost and availability of raw material and labor, and governmental regulations. Any change in these factors could materially and adversely affect the Company's operations. The Company's operations can also be substantially affected by adverse publicity resulting from quality, illness, injury, health concerns, public opinion, or operating issues. The Company will attempt to manage these factors, but the occurrence of any one or more of these factors could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Reliance on Management

The success of the Company is currently dependent on the performance of its senior management. The loss of the services of these persons would have a material adverse effect on the Company's business and prospects in the short term. There is no assurance the Company can maintain the services of its officers or other qualified personnel required to operate its business. Failure to do so could have a material adverse effect on the Company and its prospects.

Factors which may Prevent Realization of Growth Targets

The Company is currently in the early development stage. There is a risk that the additional resources will be needed and milestones will not be achieved on time, on budget, or at all, as they are can be adversely affected by a variety of factors, including some that are discussed elsewhere in these risk factors and the following as it relates to the Company:

- delays in obtaining, or conditions imposed by, regulatory approvals;
- facility design errors;
- environmental pollution;
- non-performance by third party contractors;
- increases in materials or labour costs;
- construction performance falling below expected levels of output or efficiency;
- breakdown, aging or failure of equipment or processes;
- contractor or operator errors;
- labour disputes, disruptions or declines in productivity;
- inability to attract sufficient numbers of qualified workers;
- disruption in the supply of energy and utilities; and
- major incidents and/or catastrophic events such as fires, explosions, earthquakes or storms.

The Products Sold by the Company are Subject to Regulation Governing Food, Dietary Supplement, Controlled Substances and Related Products

The activities of the Company are subject to regulation by governmental authorities. Achievement of the Company's Business objectives are contingent, in part, upon compliance with regulatory requirements enacted by these governmental authorities and obtaining all regulatory approvals, where necessary, for the sale of its products. The Company cannot predict the time required to secure all appropriate regulatory approvals for its products, or the extent of testing and documentation that may be required by governmental authorities. Any delays in obtaining, or failure to obtain regulatory approvals would significantly delay the development of markets and products and could have a material adverse effect on the Business, results of operations and financial condition of the Company.

While cannabinoids, commonly found in hemp oil, can also be commonly found in certain strains of marijuana, which faces significant restrictions on use and distribution under the United States Controlled Substances Act ("CSA"), the Company was not sourcing any derivatives from marijuana as at year end for its hemp products.

While oil derived from industrial hemp stalk that has naturally occurring THC content equal to or less than 0.3 % is excluded from the definition of marijuana under the CSA, there is no certainty that this exclusion could not be altered by court or governmental action or re-interpretation. There is no certainty that the United States Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") will not regulate the use of hemp oil or components of hemp oil as a drug and prohibit use as a dietary ingredient. There is no certainty that hemp oil will be considered a grandfathered dietary ingredient under the Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act of 1994 ("DSHEA"), or would otherwise be permitted for use under the DSHEA. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") has stated that cannabidiol, a component of hemp oil, is precluded from the definition of a dietary ingredient as it is the subject of an Investigational New Drug application.

The Company relies on the supply of hemp stalk oil extracts, which is imported into the United States from other countries. The United States Drug Enforcement Administration ("DEA") and the U.S. Customs and Border Protection Agency will not permit the entry of hemp extract into the United States if it contains any amount of THC which is a marijuana derivative and, therefore, a Schedule I drug. Currently, the definition of "marijuana" in the CSA does not include the plant's "mature stalks", which are used to create hemp (which only contains trace amounts of THC and has no psychoactive effect). Hemp stalk oil is not scheduled under the CSA and therefore, is also not under the enforcement authority of the DEA. Currently, the DEA does not take jurisdiction over hemp stalk oil products, but controls hemp cultivation, and companies that wish to cultivate hemp in the United States must apply for a permit with the DEA. If in future DEA takes jurisdiction to regulate hemp stalk oil products, the Company may become subject to additional licensing requirements, which may require additional capital. There is no assurance that the Company will be able to obtain any such licenses, or be eligible to apply for such licenses, which would adversely affect the Company's Business.

Products containing cannabis and hemp CBD may currently not be manufactured, distributed or sold in Canada unless such activity is undertaken in accordance with the Access to Cannabis for Medical Purposes Regulations ("ACMPR") or other appropriate regulatory exemptions. The Company is monitoring changes to Canada's regulations with respect to both medical and recreational cannabis and may seek to pursue opportunities to distribute its products in Canada as such regulatory changes permit.

In April of 2017, the Company began offering products containing cannabis in California. As such, it faces the following risks:

1. Federal Law. The Controlled Substances Act (the "CSA") makes it illegal under federal law to manufacture, distribute or dispense marijuana. 21 U.S.C § 801, et seq. Marijuana and cannabis is a Schedule 1 controlled substance under the CSA. Companies that engage in any form of commerce in the cannabis industry and individuals investing in a cannabis business may be subject to federal criminal prosecution along with civil fines and penalties. Federal enforcement could lead to dissolution, asset forfeiture and total loss of investment.

Since 2013, federal enforcement of state regulated cannabis operations has been deprioritized and defunded. The U.S. Department of Justice issued a memorandum (the "Cole Memo") that indicated that resources would not be directed for federal enforcement activity, including civil enforcement and criminal investigations and prosecutions related to marijuana activities. Essentially, the Cole Memo states that cannabis operations that are compliant with robust state regulatory systems are not priorities for federal enforcement. In 2014, Congress provided that "none of the funds made available... to the Department of Justice may be used ... to prevent [various] States from implementing their own State laws that authorize the use, distribution, possession, or cultivation of medical marijuana" (§ 542 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act). In 2016, the Ninth Circuit held that federal judges should stop prosecutions for conduct that is authorized by state medical marijuana laws. 2016 WL 4363168 (9th Cir. Aug. 16, 2016).

This position could change at any time. President Trump has appointed Jeff Sessions as Attorney General, an appointment that does not signal support for the cannabis industry. There is no way to predict how Mr. Trump will enforce federal law or how he will deal with states that have legalized medical or recreational marijuana. Even for businesses compliant with state laws, cannabis-related investments remain a risk under federal law. At present, the Company is solely distributing products in California's medical cannabis industry, however it may seek to distribute via California's recreational industry as well as in other states as regulations permit.

2. State and Local Compliance. In California, the state has enacted a series of laws to regulate medical cannabis, and recently voters passed Proposition 64 to regulate and tax recreational cannabis. The regulatory framework for commercial cannabis enterprises is currently being developed by several state agencies. For medical cannabis, the state anticipates issuing regulations and accepting applications for licenses in 2018. The state legislature may change Proposition 64 so long as the original intent of the initiative is maintained. For recreational cannabis, the state anticipates issuing regulations and accepting applications for licenses in 2018 as well. The cannabis industry will see many changes to laws and regulations in the coming years.

State medical and recreational laws allow local jurisdictions to enact codes so long as those regulations are more restrictive than state laws. Many local jurisdictions are in the process of developing cannabis policies. If the local jurisdiction allows cannabis operations, the business must first obtain local permits before seeking state licensing.

Permit and License requirements create a host of issues that investors should consider, including but not limited to the following:

- a. Limitations on the number of licenses and license types available to investors;
- b. Rapidly changing laws and regulations;
- c. Increased regulatory compliance costs and potentially lower gross margins;
- d. Competition; and,
- e. Potential changes to business plans, predicted income, or structure of business entities.

In addition to developing regulatory systems and local ordinances, cannabis operations must comply with all state laws and regulations as well as local ordinances and codes. Failure to comply with state and local laws and regulations could result in civil penalties, and in some cases, criminal prosecution.

There is no guarantee that any cannabis operation will get a local permit or state license. For a wide variety of reasons, cannabis businesses may not be granted state licenses. Failure to obtain a local permit or state license will prohibit future cannabis-related business activity until the business can obtain the required permits and licenses.

3. Lack of Adequate Banking Systems. Due to federal laws against marijuana, most banks are unwilling to take deposits, issue credit cards, open bank accounts or assist with payroll services for cannabis businesses. While efforts are underway to address the banking issue, cannabis businesses deal primarily with cash. This presents numerous risks related to security, managing cash flow and the inability to invest funds. The California Board of Equalization allows for cash payments of tax bills at county branches located throughout the state. Nevertheless, cash-related issues continue to present risks for investors. The Company presently maintains accounts at multiple major banks for redundancy.

4. Taxes. Under Internal Revenue Code Section 280E, cannabis businesses are prohibited from deducting their ordinary and necessary business expenses, except for some "costs of goods sold" by cultivators. This results in cannabis enterprises facing much higher federal tax rates than similar companies in other industries. While opinions differ, experts estimate from 40% to 70% as the effective federal tax rate imposed by Section 280E.

In addition, the state and localities may levy various taxes on cannabis operators. The recent passage of Proposition 64 imposes new excise taxes, including $9.25 per ounce on flowers, $2.75 per ounce for leaves, and 15% of gross receipts for sales. Local jurisdictions are permitted to impose additional taxes. In total, the aggregate tax rate for cannabis operations is well above other similar industries. Tax rates and structures (example: gross receipts vs square footage) are rapidly changing and will continue to change in the coming years.

5. Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The FDA does not permit or allow any statement that cannabis or cannabinoid is intended to treat or cure any disease. Research and scientific studies are underway throughout the U.S.; however, no product may make statements of diagnosis, treatment, or cure for any disease without FDA approval.

6. Developing Cannabis Market. The legal commercial cannabis industry in California is nascent. Although the medical collective model has existed since 2004, the commercial medical and recreational regulatory framework is currently being developed by state agencies. Commercial cannabis enterprises will start operating for-profit after state medical licenses become available in 2018. The market for medical and recreational products will likely experience fluctuation as supply chains become operational. Demand for cannabis products has been predicted to be substantial; however, there are no guarantees. Investors must consider the developing nature of the state regulated industry and the corresponding unpredictability of the cannabis market.

7. Product Liability Claims. Insurance law and available products for cannabis operations, and product liability of cannabis, is a major concern for the industry. Investors should be aware that insurance policies may be limited or claims may be challenged by insurance carriers.

8. Background Checks. California and some local jurisdictions require background checks for management and employees as well as applicants for licenses and permits. Although some cannabis-related convictions are not prohibited for obtaining licensing, convictions for other offenses may cause a delay or make a company ineligible for licensing.

9. California's Prohibition of For Profit Activities. At this time and until state licenses are issued, California prohibits cannabis activity, other than as a qualified member of a qualified cooperative or collective. Moreover, until applicable licensing, California prohibits the non-medical commercial use, cultivation, distribution, sale or purchase of cannabis. At this time, it is illegal under California law to engage in any "for profit" activities relating to the purchase and sale of cannabis and to sell, distribute or purchase cannabis for any reason other than certain medical uses, pending the implementation of the Medical Cannabis Regulation and Safety Act, pursuant to which medical cannabis companies may conduct their business in a "for profit" manner, and Proposition 64, pursuant to which recreational cannabis will become legal under California law.

The Company is presently a service-provider to Tinley Collective, a California Cooperative Corporation, and Company does not consider such services to violate California law relating "for profit" activities. However, there is no assurance that this structure will be respected by applicable governmental authorities. In the event that this structure is not respected, Company may be prohibited from engaging in "for profit" activities. California law also both prohibits the purchase and sale of cannabis by any person or entity who is not a member of a collective or cooperative and requires all cannabis transactions be reasonably related to the membership's qualifying medical needs. Such limitations often result in inefficiencies in operations and use of resources and hinders, and otherwise prevents, the growth of the Company's business and of a commercially viable cannabis industry in California.

10. Inspections. As part of the permitting and licensing process, state and local officials will conduct random and scheduled inspections of cannabis operations.

Risks Associated with Increasing Competition

There is potential that the Company will face intense competition from other companies, some of which can be expected to have longer operating histories and more financial resources and manufacturing and marketing experience the Company. Increased competition by larger and better financed competitors could materially and adversely affect the business, financial condition and results of operations of the Company.

Due to the early stage of the industry in which the Company operates, the Company expects to face additional competition from new entrants. To remain competitive, the Company will require a continued high level of investment in research and development, marketing, sales and client support. The Company may not have sufficient resources to maintain research and development, marketing, sales and client support efforts on a competitive basis which could materially and adversely affect the business, financial condition and results of operations the Company.

Risks Inherent in an Agricultural Business

A part of the Company's business revolves around purchasing hemp extract, an agricultural product, although the Company will not itself grow or sell hemp. As such, the business is subject to the risks inherent in the agricultural business, such as insects, plant diseases and similar agricultural risks. Although the Company intends to manufacture its products indoors under climate controlled conditions, carefully monitors the growing conditions with trained personnel, there can be no

of Financial Condition and Results of Operation
For the six months ended June 30, 2017

assurance that natural elements will not have a material adverse effect on the production of its products.

Product Liability

As a manufacturer and distributor of products designed to be ingested by humans, the Company faces an inherent risk of exposure to product liability claims, regulatory action and litigation if its products are alleged to have caused significant loss or injury. In addition, the manufacture and sale of the Company's products involve the risk of injury to consumers due to tampering by unauthorized third parties or product contamination. Previously unknown adverse reactions resulting from human consumption of the Company's products alone or in combination with other medications or substances could occur. The Company may be subject to various product liability claims, including, among others, that the Company's products caused injury or illness, include inadequate instructions for use or include inadequate warnings concerning possible side effects or interactions with other substances. A product liability claim or regulatory action against the Company could result in increased costs, could adversely affect the Company's reputation with its clients and consumers generally, and could have a material adverse effect on our results of operations and financial condition of the Company. There can be no assurances that the Company will be able to obtain or maintain product liability insurance on acceptable terms or with adequate coverage against potential liabilities. Such insurance is expensive and may not be available in the future on acceptable terms, or at all. The inability to obtain sufficient insurance coverage on reasonable terms or to otherwise protect against potential product liability claims could prevent or inhibit the commercialization of the Company potential products.

Product Recalls

Manufacturers and distributors of products are sometimes subject to the recall or return of their products for a variety of reasons, including product defects, such as contamination, unintended harmful side effects or interactions with other substances, packaging safety and inadequate or inaccurate labeling disclosure. If any of the products developed by the Company are recalled due to an alleged product defect or for any other reason, the Company could be required to incur the unexpected expense relating to the recall and any legal proceedings that might arise in connection with the recall. Company may lose a significant amount of revenue and may not be able to replace that revenue at an acceptable margin or at all. In addition, a product recall may require significant management attention. Although the Company is establishing procedures to test finished products, there can be no assurance that any quality, potency or contamination problems will be detected in time to avoid unforeseen product recalls, regulatory action or lawsuits. Additionally, if one of the Company's significant brands were subject to recall, the image of that brand and the Company could be harmed. A recall for any of the foregoing reasons could lead to decreased demand for the Company's products and could have a material adverse effect on the results of operations and financial condition of the Company. Additionally, product recalls may lead to increased scrutiny of the Company's operations by the regulatory agencies, requiring further management attention and potential legal fees and other expenses.

Dependence on Suppliers and Skilled Labour

The ability of the Company to compete and grow will be dependent on it having access, at a reasonable cost and in a timely manner, to skilled labour, equipment, parts and components. No assurances can be given that the Company will be successful in maintaining its required supply of skilled labour, equipment, parts and components. It is also possible that the final costs of the major equipment contemplated by the Company's capital expenditure program may be significantly greater

of Financial Condition and Results of Operation
For the six months ended June 30, 2017

than anticipated by the Company's management, and may be greater than funds available to the Company, in which circumstance the Company may curtail, or extend the timeframes for completing, its capital expenditure plans. This could have an adverse effect on the financial results of the Company.

Operating Risk and Insurance Coverage

While the Company believes its insurance coverage addresses all material risks to which it is exposed and is adequate and customary in its current state of operations, such insurance is subject to coverage limits and exclusions and may not be available for the risks and hazards to which the Company is exposed. In addition, no assurance can be given that such insurance will be adequate to cover the Company's liabilities or will be generally available in the future or, if available, that premiums will be commercially justifiable. If the Company were to incur substantial liability and such damages were not covered by insurance or were in excess of policy limits, or if the Company were to incur such liability at a time when it is not able to obtain liability insurance, its business, results of operations and financial condition could be materially adversely affected.

Management of Growth

The Company may be subject to growth-related risks including capacity constraints and pressure on its internal systems and controls. The ability of the Company to manage growth effectively will require it to continue to implement and improve its operational and financial systems and to expand, train and manage its employee base. The inability of the Company to deal with this growth may have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects.

Dividends

The Company has no earnings or dividend record, and does not anticipate paying any dividends on the Company Shares in the foreseeable future. Dividends paid by the Company would be subject to tax and, potentially, withholdings.

Limited Market for Securities

There can be no assurance that an active and liquid market for the Company Shares will develop or be maintained and an investor may find it difficult to resell any securities of the Company.

Environmental and Employee Health and Safety Regulations

The Company's operations are subject to environmental and safety laws and regulations concerning, among other things, emissions and discharges to water, air and land, the handling and disposal of hazardous and non-hazardous materials and wastes, and employee health and safety. The Company will incur ongoing costs and obligations related to compliance with environmental and employee health and safety matters. Failure to comply with environmental and safety laws and regulations may result in additional costs for corrective measures, penalties or in restrictions on our manufacturing operations. In addition, changes in environmental, employee health and safety or other laws, more vigorous enforcement thereof or other unanticipated events could require extensive changes to the Company's operations or give rise to material liabilities, which could have a material adverse effect on the business, results of operations and financial condition of the Company.
